The American University of Sharjah Earns AACSB International Accreditation

AACSB accreditation is the hallmark of excellence in business education and has been earned by less than five percent of the world's business schools. Today, there are 620 business schools in 38 countries that maintain AACSB accreditation. Similarly, 177 institutions now maintain an additional specialized AACSB accreditation for their accounting programs.

"AACSB commends the faculty, deans, directors, and administrative staffs of each institution for their exemplary work in helping their schools earn or maintain the highest honor in business school accreditation" said John J. Fernandes, president and chief executive officer of AACSB International. "We are pleased to welcome the newly accredited schools, and send our congratulations to those that have maintained their accreditation."

Where are students going next semester?

An interview with Anna Ray, our favorite advisor at IXO told the tale of the many adventures students are embarking upon next semester. As everyone knows study abroad exchange programs are an exciting and challenging experience, students often are away from home for the first time, and in a completely foreign environment. It is also a time for those students to learn about different cultures, lifestyles and often acquire lifelong friends and memories.

After speaking to Ms. Ray, it was exciting to hear that most students applying through ISEP, often receive a place in their first choice school. For next semester that a Math Major is venturing to Chester University in the UK. An international studies major is going to Austria, and a Business Major is going to San José State University. Some students will also take advantage of the partnership arrangements that AUS has with various outstanding institutions abroad such as American University in Washington, where an excited Finance major is headed and to George Washington University where a business major will study.

Remember that IXO works to promote numerous international opportunities and is aware that not all of them will be applicable. Students are encouraged to do independent research and determine for themselves the most suitable programs. Get started by visiting our website:
