Osaka International University (OIU) is extending an invitation to AUS faculty members to lead a study tour to the Osaka, Kyoto and Nara areas of Japan.

OIU is also interested in staff exchanges between our two universities. OIU will accept a lecturer to teach several classes at the university in English while conducting research on Japanese culture and society, while a lecturer from OIU will do research on Islam and Arab culture at our institution.

If interested in these opportunities, please contact IXO for more information.

Opportunity 2: Carian College Advisors Scholarship

Carian College Advisors, the UAE's leading independent educational consultancy focused on US admissions, has announced a scholarship for high school students. Carian College Advisors is asking students in their final two years of secondary school to write a 500-word essay about why they want to pursue an undergraduate education in the United States.

Volunteer in Sub-Saharan Africa

One Heart Source, a non-profit organization founded by university students, and headquartered in Los Angeles, California, is reaching out to our community for volunteers.

Since 2008, over 700 international students and post-graduates have joined One Heart Source forming conscious teams of volunteers providing high-quality education to communities and vulnerable children in Sub-Saharan Africa. However, last year, most universities representatives were from the US, Europe, China and Australia.

In an attempt to diversify volunteers, One Heart Source is calling for volunteers from our university. They are offering a variety of 2 or 4 week programs in Cape Town, South Africa, and Zanzibar, Tanzania. Volunteers will work closely with members of the community and in a dynamic team of international students.

To apply, please visit www.oneheartsource.org/volunteer.
